

Targeted, Seasoned Consultants

M² Consulting delivers the right consultant, quickly.

Sometimes the best solution is a single consultant who can provide the right level of targeted expertise needed to move critical business projects forward. Whether the need is strategic or executional in nature, M² consultants bring proven results based on an average of 15 years experience in their respective fields.

Many M² consultants have run their own successful practices, while others bring proven large company experience. Whatever your need, M² delivers the individual consulting solution that provides the right combination of skills, experience, and fit with your organization.

Success Stories

Change Management Project Manager

A leading high-tech firm needed to consolidate multiple divisions into a viable, single business unit. M² brought extensive change management leadership combining business transformation, process re-engineering, as well as cultural assessment & readiness expertise, working closely with an existing executive team to help lead this initiative. The result was widespread employee buy-in and measurable improvements in customer satisfaction.

Product Launch Expert

A large diversified financial services company was evaluating an innovative new product. M² brought product and industry expertise along with years of proven product launch credentials to the task. M² worked closely with existing client product and cross-functional teams to ensure the client retained critical knowledge and best practices to use in subsequent launches. The result was that the client led the industry in the introduction of this highly successful new product.
